New Changes to OASIS-C Require New Training

Medication management has been greatly expanded in the new OASIS-C. And, with the addition of new process items, the need for therapists involvement in medication review becomes even more important. Still, roles in this area remain unclear. Who is ultimately responsible? And, even more importantly, where do the boundaries lie?

The topic of medication management is one that continues to cause anxiety and concern for many interdisciplinary teams. A common misconception is that these issues only surround the comprehensive assessment completed at the start of an episode and don't involve the therapist. However, the focus on patient safety and new process measures have expanded the need for the entire health care team entering the home to be involved. This is no longer a subject for nurses only. All clinicians must be properly trained.

This is not a session outlining specific medications. This is a detailed 90 minute webinar that will outline the regulations surrounding the medication regimen review specific to home care and how therapists and nurses can work together to better streamline the process.

Training Objectives

- Explore the regulations that define medication regimen review.
- Define the roles and responsibilities of therapists in medication management.
- Examine the documentation components that should be utilized when documenting medication management issues.
- Get strategies for completing medication process items M2000 - M2040 when working as part of an interdisciplinary team.

70% of therapists and 60% of nurses missed questions related to medication management in Fazzi's December OASIS-C Pre-Test. Find out what mistakes were made and how to prevent them now!

Presented by A National Leader in Home Care

Cindy Krafft, MS, PT, COS-C is an Assistant Director Operational Consulting, Rehab Services at Fazzi Associates, Chair of the newly formed NAHC Therapy Advisory Committee, and the current President of the Home Health Section of the American Physical Therapy Association.

NEW! Webinar Post-Test Option

You attended the training, now take the post-test. Find out your skill level when completing OASIS-C medication management assessment items. Conducted online, the webinar post-test includes:

- Testing on the most important medication management questions on OASIS-C - including process measures.
- Instant results to e-mailed to the testing clinician.
- Immediate feedback with rationale to enhance comprehension and retention.
